ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A remote controlling device that is not dependent on the control target device is made such that a table of correspondence between operation instructions appropriate for a control target device and commands corresponding to these operation instructions can be acquired, and the operation instruction to be given to the control target device and the operation to be actually carried out by the device according to the command can be changed.